MALCOLM X SHABAZZ HIGH SCHOOL
80 JOHNSON AVE. NEWARK, N.J. 07108

This yearbook is a display of our hard work and determination. It is filled with the memories of our good times, our scholastic successes, and the many people who helped us attain our goals.

As you look upon this yearbook, think about the years past and the years to come. Remember the treacherous roads we had to travel and the ones we have yet to travel, but most of all smile, hope, wonder, think, and look up on these things and grow.

We know it won't be easy once we get out into the real world, but we say to you, "We made it, we survived, and we're here." This yearbook is proof of that. We worked so hard to produce it; we sincerely hope you enjoy it.

Shabazz students comment on Bush drug talk

Newark's Malcolm X Shabazz High School seniors responded favorably to President Bush's noon-time drug prevention address aimed at the nation's middle and secondary school students.

The students, however, disagreed with the President on drug levels being at the lowest point in 10 years.

Instead, they said, they consider drug abuse and drug traffic worse than Bush believes.

Shabazz students said they see drugs affecting the lives of all Americans regardless of their background or where they live. Drugs are a threat to all persons—young, old, rich, poor, black or white—they concluded, deeming drugs as an "equal opportunity destroyer."

Students can either "do school or do drugs," they agreed, but they "can't do both."

They also agreed with the President that education gets you places, while drugs get you nowhere.

Students seemed to have little confidence in the influence of role models or celebrities.

"We are our own role models," said one. "To take drugs or not is not an individual decision. Parents are the most important role models. If parents instill good values, children will take them through life everywhere they go."

In Robert Davis' U.S. History II class, senior students responded to Bush's talk by writing follow-up compositions.

Here are some of their reactions:

• Shawn L. Murray: "I think that all of the students in the school should have been able to hear the speech. When you use drugs or sell drugs, you risk everything, even freedom."

• Camille Shipley: "President Bush's address is a good influence for kids nationwide. What he said was good, but if he wants to stop drugs, he has to start from the top."

Shabazz High School students react to President George Bush's televised address to students detailing his national drug plan

• Hector Santiago: "The real problem of the drug problem is money. The reason why almost all of the dealers go into this deadly business is because of the opportunities of getting a hundred times more money than if they were working on minimum wage. I think President Bush should raise the minimum wage substantially so that some young adults who were thinking of going into drug dealing might decide to go to work instead."

• Katon Washington: "Drug sellers are on almost every corner. You can hardly go to the store without being asked if you would like to buy some. They even sell them to little kids who live in my area. It is up to all of us to help get the drug problem solved."

• Erica Lane: "I believe Bush is a good president, but he needs to come close to the drug situation and get the real picture."

• Andre Lewis: "I believe that in order to end drugs, you must first stop drugs from entering the country and eliminate drug dealers in the highest positions."

Principal Mary Bennett viewed students as often caught in a conflict of value systems. On one side are the positive values of their home, school and church. On the other side are the negative, brutal values of the streets.

"The choices students must make are often difficult," she said. "Yet every student knows the difference between right and wrong. Every student knows that drugs are the wrong choice," she said, urging students to "make the right choice."

Executive Schools Superintendent Eugene C. Campbell praised Bush for aiming his talk directly at students during school hours.

"If his talk convinces just one child to stay away from drugs and remain in school, the President deserves great thanks," he said. "Drugs affect everyone, and they play a major role in the destructive problems of poor school attendance, low student achievement, dropouts, crime, violence and death."

The superintendent said, "Reducing the drug problem will require a total effort on the part of all Americans."

SHABAZZ H.S.

MARY G. BENNETT

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CLASS OF 1990

With the successful completion of your high school experience, you have demonstrated a measure of determination and perseverance. These are two characteristics that will stand you in good stead as you continue the struggle in years to come.

Strive for a balance in your life. If you want the best, work for it. If you see someone in need of help, extend a hand to assist them. If someone helps you, remember to stop and thank them. In situations where you take, always try to give something. Avoid the temptation to let greed and good times dominate your life.

You are our future and I charge you to make yourself and it the best possible.

Best wishes,
Mary G. Bennett

Twenty-Seven Years Later: The Dream Still Lives

We, the class of 1990, salute Mr. Mandela for his tenacity, determination, and will to endure for the liberation of his people of South Africa.

DEDICATION

MR. RICHARD WILLIAMS

We, the class of 1990, dedicate our yearbook to Mr. Richard Williams, Vice-Principal. He has given much of himself to us. We take this time to recognize and thank him for his supervision, guidance, and concern.

The Optimist staff and class of 1990 salute you, Mr. R. Williams, and this page in our book is a small token of our gratitude and appreciation.

*We Love You!
Class of 1990
Malcolm X Shabazz*

Here we are the first graduating class of the last decade of the 20th century, taking that giant step that we have been told so often about. As African-American and Hispanic young adults there will be a lot we have to go through in order to succeed, but we know we can do it.

"One of the first things I think young people, especially nowadays, should learn is how to see for yourself and listen for yourself and think for yourself. Then you can come to an intelligent decision for yourself. If you form the habit of going by what you hear others say about someone instead of searching that thing out for yourself, you will be walking west when you think you're walking east, and you will be walking east when you think you're walking west. This generation, especially of our young people, has a burden, more so than any, any other time in history. The most important thing that we can learn to do today is think for ourselves."

*Al Hajj Malik Al Shabazz
"A Man Way Before His Time"*

OUR SENIOR CLASS ADVISOR MRS. BETTY BRANT

To the Senior Class:

It has been a distinct pleasure for me to work with you during the 1989-90 school year as your senior Class Advisor. I shall cherish the memories of the many academic and social events in which we participated.

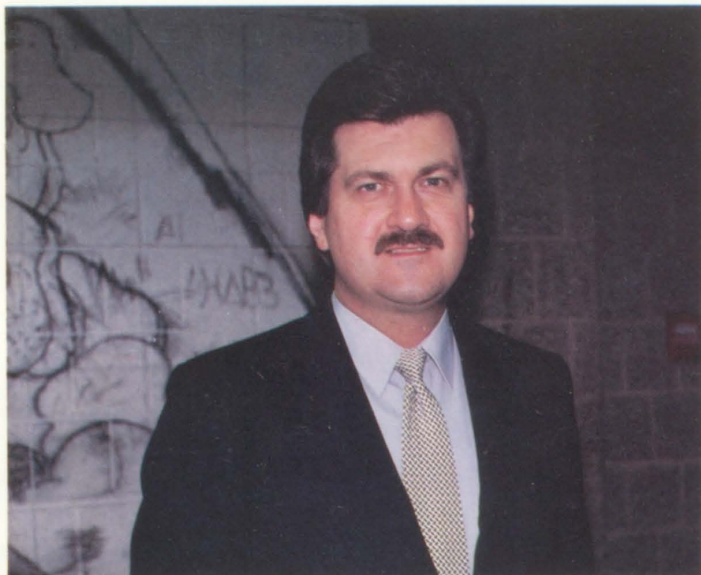

I am confident that the personal and professional lessons that you learned at Malcolm X Shabazz will propel you onward toward greater lifelong learning and self-realization.

As you prepare to graduate and join the ranks of loyal "Bulldogs," I encourage you to immediately pursue higher educational goals; however, I wish each of you unbounded success in whatever you choose to do and will continue to take pride in your individual and collective accomplishments in the years to come.

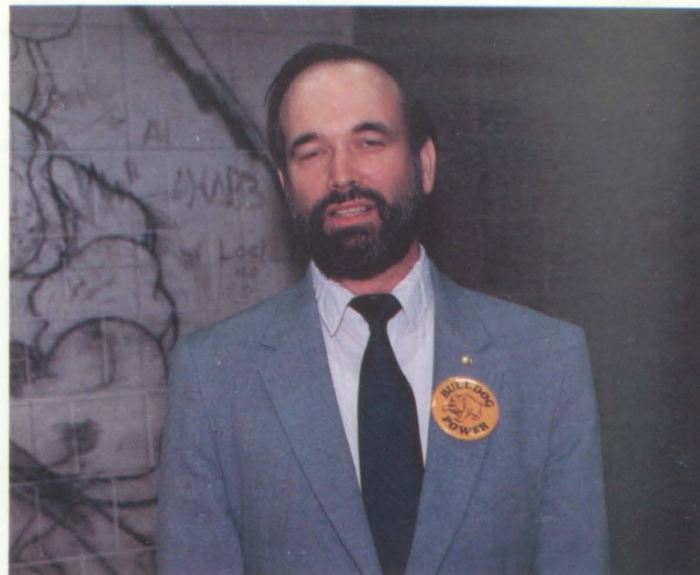

With all good wishes.

BULLDOGS

MXS '90 Graduation Rap

*We're so proud to say
We're the class of nine o
We've come a long way
We got a long way to go
It's really great to graduate
Feel emancipated - number 1 we're rated
We can't be duplicated; even imitated
So let it be stated, now that we're liberated:*

*We're the class of '90 an' we're the best
Yeah, the class of '90 - we passed the test
The class of '90 - we're the very best
The class of '90 won't settle for less
So let there be no doubt
We're what it's all about.*

*Listen one and all
We really had a ball
We did it in the class
Didn't mess up in the hall
Hey, we're so cool, we're no fools
We knew we'd graduate Shabazz High School
We had the tools, didn't need to break no rules
We're wise as owls, not dumb like mules
We're all diamonds and pearls, a classy class of jewels
Now let it be heard, this is our final word:*

*The class of '90, we're the best
Just give us a challenge and
We'll pass your test
The class of '90
We're mighty mighty
We always knew we'd win
Now let there be no doubt
For 4 years we were "in"
Now we're finally out!*

"I would not be one bit ashamed to go back into any New York public school and start where I left off in the ninth grade, and go on through a degree. Because I don't begin to be academically equipped for so many of the interests that I have. For instance, I love languages. I wish I were an accomplished linguist. I don't know anything more frustrating than to be around people talking something you can't understand. Especially when they are people who look just like you. In Africa, I heard original mother tongues, such as Hausa, and Swahili, being spoken, and there I was standing there like some little boy, waiting for someone to tell me what had been said; I never will forget how ignorant I felt.

"...recognize each other as brothers and sisters...stop carrying guns and knives to harm each other; stop drinking whisky, taking dope, reefers, and even cigarettes. No more gambling! Save your money. Stop fornication, adultery and prostitution. Elevate the Black woman; respect her and protect her. Let us rid ourselves of immoral habits and God will be with us to protect us and guide us."

TO SHERONDA MARTIN

When I think of the 1989-90 school year, I'll always remember you and the effort you put forth to produce this yearbook. All of your classmates should be aware of the sacrifices you made on their behalf. Simply stated, without you there would be no yearbook! Should any negative criticism come your way, please keep in mind that the source is probably uneducated as to what it takes to complete a yearbook; should you receive any compliments or thanks, bask in the knowledge that they are richly deserved. You grasped many new concepts so well, you persevered, you maintained your enthusiasm and determination when prospects of success dimmed. For these things, plus your sense of humor, friendship, and more, I thank you. You've done a helluva job.

*Congratulations and love,
Mr. Lissner
P.S. Best wishes for a happy future - I know you'll do well!*
